

FLORET FARM'S

FAVORITE
DAHLIA SOURCES

I'm an avid dahlia collector and every year I trial dozens of new varieties looking for those with unique forms, subtle coloring, and exceptional growth habit. I buy tubers from a lot of different places and thought I would share some of my favorite sources for quality and unique offerings here in the states. For international readers looking for dahlia tubers, we've compiled a short list of potential sources in our Recommended Dahlia Sources blog post.

Many of the dahlias featured in Discovering Dahlias are commonly available to home gardeners, while others are a bit trickier to find. There is tremendous interest in hard-to-find varieties and rarely enough stock to go around. When shopping for dahlia tubers, please extend some grace to these committed small-scale growers. They are going above and beyond to make tubers available to gardeners and are trying their best to meet demand.

I hope you find some exciting new treasures to add to your garden in the coming season. Happy hunting!

FAVORITE DAHLIA SOURCES

Arrowhead Dahlias

www.arrowheaddahlias.com

My all-time favorite source for dahlia tubers. Their quality is unmatched! Retail only.

Bear Creek Farm

www.bearcreekfarm.com

A nice selection of cut flower varieties. Retail only.

Birch Bay Dahlias

www.birchbaydahlias.com

My all-time favorite place to discover new novelties. Retail only.

Connell's Dahlias

www.connells-dahlias.com

A fantastic selection of high-quality tubers. Retail and wholesale.

Crazy 4 Dahlias

www.crazy4dahlias.com

Specializes in award-winning varieties. Retail only.

Dahlias by Julie

www.dahliasbyjulie.com

A nice selection of sizes, colors, and forms, including some hard-to-find varieties. Retail only.

Dahlia Shed

www.dahliashed.com

Focuses on good cut flower varieties. Retail only.

Dan's Dahlias

www.shop.dansdahlias.com

Offers more than 300 varieties of top-quality dahlia tubers. Retail only.

Delightful Dahlias

delightfuldahlias.shutterfly.com

Offers more than 600 varieties with a focus on cut-flower and show-winning varieties. Retail only.

FAM Flower Farm

www.famflowerfarm.com

A long-standing farm that specializes in dinner plate and Jowey varieties. Located in the Netherlands, ships to the United States. Retail and wholesale.

Ferncliff Gardens

www.ferncliffgardens.com

Breeders of the 'Ferncliff' and 'Mission' varieties. Located in Canada, ships to the United States. Retail only.

Fivefork Farms

www.fiveforkfarms.com

Offers more than 100 varieties for cut flower production; some varieties in bulk. Retail only.

Goldenrod Gardens

www.goldenrodgardens.net

Wonderful dahlia varieties for cutting and arranging. Retail only.

Goose Creek Gardens

www.goosecreekgardens.com

Offers 35 types of dahlia varieties suitable for cut flower production. Retail only.

Lobaugh's Dahlias

www.lobaughsdahlias.com

Offers more than 200 varieties of dahlias, with a focus on open-centered types. Retail only.

Ralph's Greenhouse

www.organicdahlias.com

Offers more than 50 varieties of certified organic dahlia tubers. Retail and wholesale.

Ribier Gardens

www.ribiergardens.com

Specializes in varieties for cut flower production and those that thrive in the heat. Retail only.

Santa Cruz Dahlias

www.santacruzdahlias.com

Hybridizer Kristine Albrecht focuses on breeding varieties for florists and designers. Visit her website for a current list of retailers selling her tubers.

Siskiyou Seeds

www.siskiyouseeds.com

Certified organic dahlia tubers with a focus on types that hold up well for market bouquets. Retail only.

Summer Dreams Farm

www.summerdreamsfarm.com

Offers about 150 varieties, specializing in those for cutting. Retail only.

Sunny Meadows Flower Farm

www.sunnymeadowsflowerfarm.com

A nice selection of varieties for cut flower production; some varieties in bulk. Retail only.

Swan Island Dahlias

www.dahlias.com

Largest dahlia producer in the country, offering hundreds of varieties. Retail and wholesale.

Triple Wren Farms

www.triplewrenfarms.com

Offers a huge selection of more than 200 varieties, including many rare treasures as part of its Legacy collection. Retail only.